Opportunity?

•October 2013: Nest Protect was first introduced by Nest Labs as a smart smoke and CO detector.

•January 2014: Google acquired Nest Labs, bringing Nest Protect under its umbrella.

•March 2025: Google officially discontinued the Nest Protect and began directing customers to the BRK/First Alert (Resideo) lineup.

•The Nest Protect is designed to function effectively for 10 years from its date of manufacture, due to the limited durability of the carbon monoxide (CO) sensor, which degrades over time, as required by safety certification standards

Installed base of over 10 million units.

10-year lifespan.
Nest Protect's long-lasting sensors can keep you and your family safe and sound for up to a decade.
